IN THE WOMEN'S BUILDING

Rorticultural finit, With its Wilderness of Flowers and Plants-The Transportation Building.

From the art building around the odge of the legoes is an easy walk to the woman's building

You see woman has become tired of eternally taking a back seat, even at the circus, so when they began talking about the world's fair they determined to make a hold push for the front, and they have done it, and more too. The they have done it, and more, too. The list thing they did was to have a board of lady scanagers appointed, and the exit thing they did was to elect Mrs. Potter Paimer president of the aforement beard, thereby having direct compunication with Potter's picthoric pocketbook, as well as securing the services of one of the most boardiful and talented women on earth. The first thing the board did was to crush any appirations any horrible man night have, as to having anything to do with planning the building and Niss first thing they did was to have a board of lady stanagers appointed, and the next thing they did was to elect Mrs. Potter Paimer president of the aforesaid beard, thereby having direct communication with Potter's pletheric peckethook, as well as securing the services of one of the most beautiful and injected women on earth.

The first thing the board did was to crush any aspirations any horrible man might have, as to having snything to do with planning the building and Miss Sophis G. Hayden of Boston was selected as the architect. I wish to say that Miss Sophia G. Hayden, of Boston is perfectly justifiable in being proud of

Then the next thing this board of lady managers did was to stir up the women all over the world, and they stirred them up so effectually that they took their hands out of the dough, or dropped their sewing and turned in to down the men. and they have done that too, and the effect is earn in the discouraged and althoughted appearance of the men as they energy from that building after having been piloted through by their triumphant better halves. Cal Samuel Wats formerly manager of the Soldiers' home here, is superintendent of the building and it is a position which he admirably tilla-

The banking is light, siry and graceful, and the first view as one enters the control court with its fountain in the center is very pleasing. One feels like evolutioning "Great is Diana of the hybridians. There are some large mural paintings which are good but somewhat lacking in force. Near the fountage is a piece of statuary entitled "The West," the allegory being finely delineated A has relief entitled "Ophelia" was especially noticeable, both for verve and purity of design. Mand Mulier was a pretty conception. The exhithat the eignoras and eignorians from the land of the cactus and guitar are deft with their fingers. There are several paintings of considerable merit, and as for needle work, the display is beaudering. In the Spanish exhibit is the sword of Queen Isabella, also her picture, and attention is called to the loci that Isabella was a woman. The next building to this is Choral or Fostival hall, where concerts are given, and where Theodore Thomas struggles with Wagner in an effort to educate the American people up to the idea of thinking that Wagner write music. The Festival Hall is amphitheatrical in shape, and very artistic in design, being purely Doric. The exercises here are one of the greatfeatures of the fair, and the design is to have international gatherings devoted to the discussion of exhibition of different phases of arts, sciences or economies of various kinds, and Music Hall is also available for this

net walk when it can ride, and about the first use our forefathers made of their brains was to devise some way to keep off their feet, at least part of the time. The first essay after horseback riding seemed to be a sleigh. They took two runners, fastened them to gether, bored holes in them, stuck poles in the holes, fixed a top on, hitched an ox to the cart, and started out "to put

Then came the solid wheel, without spokes, which evoluted into the wheel with spokes, the vehicles progressing in comfort and elegance to the chariots of the present day.

In the railroad system the progressive history of railroads is shown as never before. Here is the first ideas of converting water into steam, compelling that steam to turn a crank, lever, pis ton, arm or something that turned a wheel at the other end of the line. Then when one wheel was turned two could be, and with some strap iron nailed on a hard wood sill they formed a track, and flanging the wheels, they started to travel. As the spike heads stuck up a little above the rail, it is needless to say that indigestion would be completely cured after a journey. But with the application of the cylinder, the piston rod and eccentric, came better service; the U. and P. rails came into use, the first joint between the rails made a smoother track, and then the coaches became more confortable. Here is the whole thing before you on a track in the New York Central display is the DeWitt Chaton, the first engine run in America, with its train of old stage coaches on flanged wheels, while by its side stands 190, the noble engine which made a run of 112% miles in 110 min utes, if I am correctly informed. Behind it stands a train of Wagner palace cars, palaces indeed, with every luxury known to the present day. In the Puliman exhibit the same elegance with ekins seems to have appeared about this time, and from that primitive beginning the inventive brain of man has reached the climax in the floating polaces that cross the ocean and run upon our rivers.

People began to tire of walking up and down stairs, so they cut a hole through the floor, put an axie on, which was a groved wheel, near the top of the building and hitched a platform to it. Over the wheel they put a rope and in this way hanied themselves up or down. From this has spring the present ele-vator which is exhibited here in full blast and ready to take you up to the

Here are cars for climbing mountains, closed cars, cars with seats rideways and every other kind of way. Here are borss cars, cable lars, electric cars. The intra nurral electric road is a part of this exhibit. It has a trolley beneath the our and takes the current from a third rad. Here are carriages that queens have ridden in down to the most est yet turbulent wheelbarrow. Here eachfie of mutton. Here is an English aleeping car, where it takes pretty nearly a whole car to hold one sleeper. Here is a ceach with a parlor, which has a mantel piece with a grate in it.

Unique Engines.

Then again there are all kinds of engines, shining like gold. Some of ben are all smokestack and very little bouse, and some are all boiler with a discouraged looking smokestack.
